Fleet Air Arm pilot from Fermanagh fought with RAF in Battle of Britain

Lieutenant Henry William Beggs was one of over 500 personnel killed when a German U-Boat sank HMS Avenger to the north-west of Gibraltar in November 1942.

Lieutenant Beggs served in the Royal Air Force and the Royal Navy during World War Two. After flying in the Battle of Britain, he went on to join the Royal Navy's Fleet Air Arm.

Born on 6th September 1916, he was the son of John Allen Beggs, MRCVS, and Anne Louise (Nancy) Beggs (née...
Allingham) of Irvinestown, Co. Fermanagh. He was the husband of Patricia Rosemary Beggs of Chiswick, Middlesex.

He enlisted in the Royal Air Force on a short service commission in November 1936. As an Acting Pilot Officer, he completed training and joined RAF 115 Squadron on 4th September 1937. The Royal Air Force terminated his commission on 28th December 1937.

In May 1939, Beggs joined the Royal Navy’s Fleet Air Arm. On 15th June 1940, he was attached to the Royal Air Force, converted to Hawker Hurricanes, and served in the Battle of Britain. On 1st July 1940, he joined RAF 151 Squadron from RAF Martlesham Heath, Suffolk.
Beggs downed a Messerschmitt ME109 of 4/JG 52 over Kent on 14th August 1940. The following day, he received injuries after a Messerschmitt ME109 shot down his Hawker Hurricane P3605 over Dover. After recovering from his injuries, he rejoined the Fleet Air Arm. In January 1942, he joined Naval Air Squadron on 883. He died on 15/11/1942 aged 25 years old.

The Royal Navy declared Henry William Beggs missing presumed killed after an attack on HMS Avenger (D-14). Commander AP Colhurst was captain of the Royal Navy vessel as it embarked on a return journey to the Clyde from North Africa.

On 15th November 1942, at 0414hrs, U-155, under the command of Adolf Cornelius Piening, fired 4 torpedos at convoy MKF-1Y. The convoy was around 120 miles north-west of Gibraltar. HMS Avenger was one of 3 ships hit by the German submarine’s torpedos. The Ettrick also sank and a missile caused damage to USS Almaack (AK 27).

The torpedo that struck HMS Avenger detonated the ship’s bomb load and blew up the entire centre section of the vessel. The Avenger sank in under 2 minutes. HNoMS Glaisdale (L 44), captained by Lieutenant Commander T Horve), picked up 12 survivors. The remaining 514 personnel on board died as a result of the incident.

Henry William Beggs has no known grave. His name is on Bay 3, Panel 1 of the Fleet Air Arm Memorial, Lee-on-Solent, Hampshire. There is an H.Beggs named on Enniskillen WM.

HMS Avenger

On 18 April 1942, Avenger started flight deck landing training with four Fairey Swordfish aircraft of 816 Naval Air Squadron, Fleet Air Arm. The exercise had to be curtailed when her engines broke down. Repaired by 30 April 1942, she joined the escort for convoy AT17 to cross the Atlantic to Britain. During the crossing the Swordfish of 816 Squadron provided anti-submarine patrols. On 4 May, two aircraft lost the convoy in heavy weather and requested a homing beacon from Avenger. She was unable to help, not having the correct equipment, and both aircraft and crews were reported missing. When Avenger arrived in Britain the Fleet Air Arm had a shortage of Martlet fighter aircraft, so a small number of RAF Hawker Hurricanes were converted into Sea Hurricanes. Avenger was chosen to test their deck landing ability on escort carriers. The tests, flown by Eric “Winkle” Brown were successful, and the Sea Hurricane equipped 802 Naval Air Squadron and 882 Naval Air Squadron, with 12 aircraft assigned to Avenger. They were joined by three Fairey Swordfish and five crews from 825 Naval Air Squadron.

Avenger was a Class Escort Aircraft Carrier obtained under US/UK Lend Lease Agreement. The ship was under construction at Chester, Pennsylvania by Sun Shipbuilding as mercantile to be named Rio Hudson. She was laid down on 28/11/1939 and launched on 27/11/1940. After her requisition by the US Navy she was taken in hand by Bethlehem Steel Corporation, New York for conversion to suit use as an Auxiliary Aircraft Carrier.

Transfer to the Royal Navy was agreed on 31/07/1941 and the ship was identified as BAVG2. Build was completed on 01/03/1942 when she became the seventh RN ship to carry the name Avenger.

This name was first used in 1779 for a Sloop and lastly in 1915 by an Armed Merchant Cruiser sunk in 1917 by U69.

She was the second of the US built CVE to be transferred to the Royal Navy and like others in the first batch of US built Escort Carriers the ship had diesel propulsion machinery driving a single shaft. British radar was fitted after arrival in UK.

Whilst in service her propulsion machinery was unreliable.

Bill Bamber was born in Coleraine on 12th July, 1922, son of William and Annie in Adams Place, which is opposite the Union St., Orange Hall. He attended Eden Elementary School and later worked for Boyds’ Engineering, Bendooragh. Inspired by his father’s account of the Royal Marines at Gallipoli, he enlisted and travelled to Deal.

Due to the onset of war in September 1939, training was condensed. Engagements at Boulogne and Calais followed. Taken prisoner on 26/04/1940, he was marched into Germany to Stalag VIII -B where the prisoners were made to work 12 hour days. He was liberated on 02/05/1945.

Bill and Elizabeth Anne McKinney were married 15/03/1947. In 1949 he volunteered for and completed the Commando course and was posted to Malaya with 3 Commando Brigade. After tours in Malta and North Africa, he completed his service on 11/07/1953.

He then completed 31 years as a postman covering a daily route of 22 miles each day. He served in the RUSC and later joined UDR serving from 1972 - 79.

He was Chairman of Ballymoney Branch RBL 1972 - 79. His wife was awarded the Legion’s Award Bar for outstanding service to the Women’s Section. In 2004 a book titled, “My service life” written by Ronnie Gamble, was published. His funeral was from St. Patrick’s Parish Church to Ballymoney Cemetery. - (Based on a report in Ballymoney Times, 19/07/2011).

Carrickfergus and Larne aircrew died together over Burma

Sergeant Trevor Barkley Boyd - 1145139 - Royal Air Force Reserve, was born in Greenisland, Carrickfergus in 1922. He was killed in the air on a bombing run over Burma on 23rd/24th February 1944 aged 22.

Trevor was the son of Edgar and Margaret Jessie Boyd of Greenisland and like many others in Northern Ireland during the war enlisted with the Royal Airforce Reserve. He was assigned to a B-24 Liberator bombing crew as one of the 11 man crew. On the evening of 23rd February 1944 he has the B-24 crew of BZ951 were on a bombing mission en route to Sinde in Burma when the aircraft was lost in the sky due to an explosion. Records on the event are vague but it appears that the entire crew were lost and none of the men
